

Presentation and Publication Policy

The Resilience Week Leadership is delighted that your paper has been accepted for presentation. This note is designed to explain the different methods for presentations.

Presentations

Authors attending one of the Resilience Week symposia will present their work in either an oral or a poster session format.

Oral presentations

Each author will have a total of 20 minutes (15 minute presentation, 5 minute Q&A) to present their contribution and answer questions. (If a track/session chair requests a work in progress presentation, only 5 minutes is allotted.) A basic rule of thumb is 2 minutes/slide. The session chairperson(s) will help ensure the smooth flow of presentations. A video projector and screen will be provided, but a computer will not be provided. Authors must arrive well before their session to discuss presentation logistics with their session chair. Wi-Fi access will be provided in the symposium area. Presentations should use the presentation template available on the symposium webpage.

Works in progress, Industry and Lightning presentations

Similar to above, but a lesser time is normally allotted for works in progress and for lightning presentations, as defined by the symposium chair(s).

Poster Session presentations

Posters will be featured in a designated room. Displays should be designed to capture attention, and also be readable from several feet away. Large font sizes and generous use of color are highly recommended. The material displayed should convey the essence of the work, and not necessarily the details. There will be a designated time for the presentation of the posters; however, they will stay in the designated room for the duration of the symposium. Posters should be 32 inches wide by 48 inches high. Hanging materials will be available from symposium staff.

Internet/Proceedings Publication

An electronic copy of the paper proceedings will be provided to all symposium participants via a download location. After the symposium, any plenary/keynote presentations and videos will also be posted on the associated Resilience Week symposium website.
